EDITOR'S DESK

The whole world is affected by the pandemic corona. The people of the world are looking for a cure. The great powers are in a transfixed state as they couldn't find a solution to this pandemic in the near future. Many new things have become norm for the society. People with masks and sanitizers are seen everywhere. Social distancing has been followed to the maximum. Those who are not following these customs are looked upon with frown by the most people.

The political discourses of every country are facing a crisis situation. This pandemic is teaching a lot of lessons to all in the world. Governments are following WHO guidelines. The Ministers and Members of Legislative Assembly are also being affected by this pandemic. The governments and political parties conduct online meetings with their party men for corona relief measures. The parties are looking for early cure. They supply the traditional medicines like "kabasura Kudineer" and vitamin C tablets.

The schools are thinking of continuing online classes. The students are waiting for examination information. Nobody issues about the examination dates. There are perplexing questions among them. There is a discussion whether examination will be conducted or cancelled. The students are at home waiting for examinations. The uncertainty of exams looms large in their faces. Some of the schools are giving online lectures to students and even some conduct online model exams.

The common people are thinking about economic conditions. The people who depend on daily wages for both ends to meet are the worst affected. The economic conditions of them are worrisome one. In spite of that they are cooperating with governments for prevention of this pandemic to spread.

In this situation, the online programmes are really a boon to the learned communities to share their knowledge; TNTEU has picked up this situation in right way and seized the opportunity to excel in online programmes. This month witnessed a large no. of programmes by our faculty. All the activities have been organised in this newsletter. Our faculties are continuously organizing. It gives me immense pleasure in providing all the activities in this newsletter in a capsule form.
